

Abstract

In a method of rough-honing the circumferential surface of a bore, a honing tool is inserted into a bore, wherein before rough-honing the longitudinal axis of the bore has an offset relative to the finished bore. This offset is compensated during the rough-honing operation.